The hit heard 'round the Hub

Bruins fans take Nathan Horton's serious injury personally ◗ Many die-hards say they are thirsty for revenge against Vancouver's cheap shots ◗ Metro conducts poll, takes a look at Boston's most hated Canucks

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Nathan Horton is examined by a member of the Bruins staff following a gruesome late hit by Vancouver's Aaron Rome in Game 3 of the Stanley Cup finals Monday.

When Bruins forward Nathan Horton took a hit Monday night, the fans felt it.

"When something bad happens to an athlete that has a positive image for a large number of people, those people are going to feel wounded," said Dave Czesniuk, senior associate director of Sport in Society, a Northeastern University research center.

The vicious late hit by Vancouver's Aaron Rome during Game 3 of the Stanley Cup finals knocked Horton to the ice, causing a severe concussion that will keep him out of the remaining games.

The brutal bash has fueled fans' fury against the Canadian team and created a Canuck hit list in Beantown.

Among the most hated Canucks players are Rome, the Sedin twins and Alex Burrows, according to a Metro minipoll.

Czesniuk said hits like the one Horton took cause loyal fans to feel affected.

"We have the belief that sports figures embody a unique power and appeal to the public not everyone else has," said Czesniuk. "It is their makeup of physical performance and super human skill mixed with high energy and high passion. These are the sorts of things that resonate with human beings."

Czesniuk said fans develop such a palpable admiration for athletes that if something bad happens, the negative emotional consequences arise.

"It's like they are punching me in the stomach," said Steve Sierra of Revere. "Seeing the other team celebrate the hit pisses me off."

This particular incident seems to have "woken a sleeping bear" in Boston fans and Bruins players, said Czesniuk.

"This gives the fans something to cheer more loudly about and the players to play a little bit harder for," said Czesniuk.

"Sports are bred deep in this city," said Jacob Goss, a self-proclaimed Bruins fan. "It's more important than politics. It's more than just a game."

The National Hockey League yesterday suspended Rome for the next four games.

Game 4 begins tonight at 8 at the TD Garden.

Three Canucks who Bruins fans can't stand.

1. Aaron Rome. Rome quickly moved to the top of fans' not-so-nice list with what many feel was a blindside hit to Nathan Horton in Game 3.
2. The Sedin twins. With a combined 37 postseason points going in to the finals, what's not to hate?
3. Alex Burrows. Video shows Burrows biting Patrice Bergeron's finger in Game 1. Not cool.

NYC man busted for bogus tix

BOSTON. A New York man was busted outside the TD Garden on Monday night for allegedly trying to sell counterfeit Stanley Cup finals tickets.

When David Lucas, 28, of Bronx, N.Y., noticed officers watching him as he tried to sell tickets near the MBTA subway plaza, he walked away, but officers caught up, police said.

Officers found Lucas with 18 tickets on him, police said. A manager at the Garden box office confirmed the tickets were fake. METRO

Device prompts bomb scare at MIT

Materials force evacuation of some students from dorm ◐ Bomb squad called in ◐ Students wait it out

A contractor who discovered an object that had the "appearance and characteristics of a pipe bomb" prompted a large emergency response and evacuation on the campus of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology yesterday.

But after members of the Cambridge Police bomb squad tried three times to neutralize the object, it was determined that it was not a bomb.

"An object ... turned out, on further examination, to be a collection of harmless materials," MIT said in a statement.

The object was two aluminum or metal tubes that contained ball bearings and possibly sand that were located next to chemicals later determined to be household cleaners. Police were unsure who left the materials there, but did not believe it was a prank.

New House, the residence hall where the materials were found at 7:30 a.m., and Next House, an adjacent dormitory, were evacuated during the investigation.

Graduate student Nicole Denisco said only a few students were living in those dorms during the summer. Those who were evacuated had to wait about six hours before it was deemed safe for them to return.

Police were still searching yesterday for the gunmen who shot three people, including two innocent bystanders during an early morning shooting in Dorchester.

The shots rang out about 7 a.m. at the corner of Talbot and Blue Hill avenues.

Bomb scares keep cops busy

At about 1:30 p.m., just as the MIT campus was cleared following a bomb scare, police received another suspicious device call at 20 Ames St.

They found a GPS with pieces of paper stuck to it attached to a bicycle rack.

It was hit with the water cannon and was determined to be a game where people hide the GPS, write past coordinates on it and try to find it again, police said. METRO

News in brief

GM CEO issues debt warning

WASHINGTON. Politicians should not "play chicken" with the country's credit rating, but need to focus urgently on finding ways to reduce the rising budget deficit, according to the head of General Motors Co.

The battle between President Barack Obama's Democratic Party and the opposition Republicans over whether to raise the limit on government borrowing from its current $14.3 trillion level plays a dangerous game with default, Daniel Akerson, chief executive of the largest U.S. automaker, said yesterday. REUTERS

BERLIN. NBC Universal beat rivals FOX and ESPN to secure U.S. broadcasting rights to four Olympic Games from 2014 until 2020 in a deal worth $4.38 billion yesterday.

"It was very strategically important to have a long relationship and have four more Games and not just two. It was a big part of our strategy," said Brian Roberts, chairman and CEO of Comcast. REUTERS

Obama's economic rating lowest ever

About 59 percent say president not handling economy well ◐ Overall approval rating went up after bin Laden death, now down nearly 10 points

GETTY IMAGES

Americans' disapproval of how President Barack Obama is handling the economy and its growing budget deficit has reached new highs amid broad frustration over the slow pace of economic recovery, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll released yesterday.

The ratings boost Obama received after the killing of Osama bin Laden has dissipated with his job approval rating back to 47 percent. Forty-nine percent disapprove of his performance.

Obama's approval rating bounced to 56 immediately after bin Laden was killed last month.

Fifty-nine percent, a new high, gave Obama negative marks for his handling of the economy, up from 55 percent a month earlier.

Obama's approval rating on the deficit issue hit a new low of 33 percent, down six points since April.

The state of the economy poses a huge challenge for the president, whose re-election may depend on his ability to convince voters that his economic policies have been successful. REUTERS

Nintendo unveils a more serious Wii U

New system's controller has a touch screen, camera and speakers • A bit more grown up than original Wii

New features

What's the difference between the old and new systems?

THE CONTROLLER. The Wii U's controller is rectangular, and has a touch screen, speakers and a camera, compared to the screen-free baton of the original Wii. "This is like something off the bridge of the Starship Enterprise," said a Wired.com gaming editor.

MORE MATURE GAMES. There was bloodshed during yesterday's presentation — in space, sports and warrior games. Compare that to the family-friendly Wii Fit.

Nintendo introduced its new game console, the Wii U, at the Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles yesterday. Its distinguishing feature is a unique controller that resembles a tablet computer with a built-in touch screen, speakers and a camera. Users can play games on the TV, on the controller or, in many cases, both. The Wii U goes on sale in 2012.

"It's a new structure for home entertainment," said Reggie Fils-Aime, president and COO of the company's North American division.

Although the controller resembles a mobile device — and the Wii U itself is Internet-ready — Fils-Aime cautioned that "it was not designed to be a portable gaming machine, even though it shares some characteristics. The images displayed on the new controller are generated only by Wii U."

"You can hold the controller up as a shield and catch arrows and that kind of thing."
CHRIS KOHLER, WIRED.COM GAMING EDITOR

Files-Aime showed footage of "New Super Mario Bros. Me," in which your avatar jumps around with Mario, and "Lego City Stories," an exclusive title set in the Lego world. Other available titles will include "Batman: Arkham City," a new "Assassin's Creed" and EA Sports titles — serious games for serious gamers.

Diaz and Rodriguez defy the rumors

Cameron Diaz is being all, "In your face, tabloids! I still have my yummy piece of arm candy," and denying reports that she and Alex Rodriguez have split up. The pair have been acting very much like a couple around L.A. recently, hitting up parties for the MTV Movie Awards and the NBA Finals looking "very affectionate," sources tell Us Weekly. Even People reports that the two are so not-broken-up, they're looking for a house together in Miami. As for dealing with reports about her love life, Diaz shrugs it off: "If I want to read gossip, I read about somebody else's life. I can't worry about what other people say," she tells Extra. "It's fine to say whatever you want as long as you actually don't know what's going on in my life."

Josh Duhamel soaps up again

Josh Duhamel hasn't forgotten where he comes from — the actor is going to make a cameo on his former soap, ABC's "All My Children," before it goes off the air in September. He'll be reprising his awesome character of Leo du Pres, a con man who was presumed dead thanks to a waterfall accident (note: soap plot lines are the best). "Everyone at 'All My Children' is thrilled and excited to welcome Josh back to Pine Valley," "AMC" executive producer Julie Carruthers said in a statement. "The appearance of Leo is sure to be one the highlights of the season."

As long as Duhamel's not wearing a shirt while reprising his role, I totally agree with her.

Kate Hudson's baby shower

Kate Hudson is one step closer to becoming a mom again, celebrating with a baby shower at a private home in Malibu recently, with the guest list including Rachel Zoe, Courteney Cox and Jessica Capshaw, according to People magazine. "[Kate] looked amazing and kept giggling while mingling with friends, nibbling on food and playing games. She seemed to have the best time," a source says of the soiree. With the gender of the baby still a mystery, guests lavished Hudson with "gender-neutral baby items," according to the source.

What's up with ScarJo & Penn?

Though Scarlett Johansson and Sean Penn have put their relationship to rest, they were spotted hanging out together recently backstage at Spike TV's Guys Choice Awards, according to Popeater, though it's apparently no surprise. "If you remember after Scarlett confirmed her split from Ryan [Reynolds], the two continued to see each other and have dinner together," a friend of the actress says. "Just because you are no longer with someone doesn't mean you stop caring about them and never want to see them again."

Mila Kunis must be blind

Mila Kunis doesn't exactly agree with the idea that she's a sex symbol, according to L.A. Confidential magazine. "I'm flattered, but I'm not that person," the former "That 70s Show" star says. "Sophia Loren is a sex symbol. If watching TiVo and eating Pinkberry in sweatpants is sexy, then I'm your gal."

▶ Yes, Bedingfield does still perform the theme from "The Hills" when she plays.

Natasha Bedingfield took some time off from the pop scene and its demands Now, she is ready to return

It's a beautiful, sunny day on Cape Cod and British pop singer Natasha Bedingfield is taking a few minutes from a rehearsal for a show that predates her first bout of touring for her third album, "Strip Me."

"This show's special, it's for charity," she says from the Best Buddies Challenge in Hyannis.

The next day, the 29-year-old heads to Northampton, for the first "proper" date on her "Less is More" tour and, not atypically, the bubbly blonde is excited. It's been a long time since she toured. After two successful albums, Bedingfield suffered severe burnout.

"I took a big break from the whole process of the music business," she says. "It's gimmicky, and it's not always about music."

"We're all seeing so much craziness going on, and it's easy to become crippled with fear. But the reaction I take is to get out and celebrate what we have." BEDINGFIELD

Stepping back and re-evaluating her life put her back on track. Hence, the seemingly provocative album title: Bedingfield has stripped her life down to what really matters.

"I think everyone is making a move toward that. There's a lot of stuff I thought was meaningful that has become meaningless. We're all seeing so much craziness going on, and it's easy to become crippled with fear. But the reaction I take is to get out and celebrate what we have."

She's also stripped her shows down to a simple three-piece band.

"I'm limiting myself on purpose. I think it's more dynamic like this, more real," she says. "People can tell when it's real. I'm keeping it anthemic, but I'm doing it my way — just good, soulful music."

LINDA LABAN

She hopes that someone gets her SMS

Bedingfield, who splits time between London and Los Angeles, tells Metro that she'll be doing some fun cover songs on this tour.

"We're doing a cover of The Police's 'Message in a Bottle.' We're changing the words to 'sending out an SMS' though," she giggles. "Actually, I've got to go and practice it right now!"

Mad men:

Hormones aren't only a female issue

June is Men's Health Month, and one area that's often overlooked is hormonal function Men's bodies can make them 'erratic and moody,' too (we knew it!)

When Dr. Eric Braverman says men's testicles are attached to their brains, he isn't admonishing his fellow sex. Testosterone, the male sex hormone, is regulated by the brain — which monitors blood levels and initiates a chain reaction to produce more or less of it.

"Men have greater hormonal swings on a year-to-year basis than women. They have more periodic changes that they usually ignore, and then they become more erratic and moody," says Braverman, an integrative medicine specialist and the author of "Younger (Sexier) You," which was published last year. Braverman also founded and heads New York City's PATH Medical Center.

An imbalance of testosterone can result in depression, abdominal weight gain or prostate and heart disease — oh, and that much-advertised loss of libido, too. Braverman lists several behaviors as destructive to hormonal stability, but smoking pot and excessive alcohol use sit at the top of the "Don't Do" list, he says.

It isn't just testosterone that needs to be in balance, though. Increased anxiety and aggression triggers excessive amounts of the stress hormones cortisol and adrenaline, which wear on the body and mind.

Keeping hormone production stable starts with that much-touted trinity of health: sleep, diet and exercise. "Men have to master those cornerstones to be stable and happy," Braverman says.

LINDA CLARKE
letters@metro.us

Attitude is crucial

If there's one thing that men should do, Braverman says, it's admit to mistakes — thus lessening guilt and anxiety, plus creating an environment for better sleep and healthier habits.

"Men don't like to admit their mistakes. But we learn from mistakes, and learning and growing is crucial. It leads to better relationships and a better shot at stability."

Junk mail case not a big joke

Hey, Weiner, cheer up! The wurst is yet to come!
HERB STARK, VIA E-MAIL

It's funny that when men behave badly there are always male professionals calling it a "disorder." But when females are caught out, they don't get to wear the disorder label; they are called nasty derogative names that I refuse to repeat. Bottom line: Weiner, like a lot of other males, is a scumbag who disrespected his wife and family by messing around online with women.
CYNTHIA KING, VIA E-MAIL

On Obama and the economy

RE: "WHEN IS OBAMA RESPONSIBLE?": Mr. Cancelmo should look up the definition of "inherited." Like it or not, the state of the economy when Obama took office was due solely to the decisions of his predecessor; campaign pledges have no relevance to this fact. One can argue he should have done a better job the past two years, but to say he didn't inherit a mess is foolish.
JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA E-MAIL

Obama may have inherited an economic recession but it is his administration whose fiscal and monetary policies have prolonged the recession and quite possibly taken us into a double-dip recession. When government gets involved it prolongs and deepens the hardship. It's no coincidence the Great Depression lasted a decade when it was the first depression in U.S. history to witness gigantic intervention by the federal government. KELLY DONNOE, VIA E-MAIL

Claiming facts without sources completely destroys your argument. D. Cancelmo writes: "No other president ... [has] ever blamed their predecessor for their predicament as has this one." I cannot find any recent quotes by the administration about this at all, except for quotes people have pretended were said.

Reality vs. actuality

In reality, the sky is blue; in actuality, it's not. In reality, snow is white; in actuality, it's not. To discern reality from actuality, you need a high degree of intelligence and understanding. Unfortunately, the American populace lacks both. We allow ourselves to be conditioned by ideology spewed from unscrupulous politicians. This is our reality and it's a terrible illusion.
RICH BRITTLE SR., VIA E-MAIL

Even after rout, hit leaves Bruins down, without

Rome, Horton will both miss the rest of the season ◐ Dirty Canuck's suspension 'doesn't bring Nathan back,' Lucic says ◐ Ryder could fill in

The NHL acted swiftly and decisively yesterday in handing out justice for the Bruins' Nathan Horton.

That's a bit ironic, perhaps, if one believes the league's lack of punishment earlier in the series created the climate for Aaron Rome's gruesome head shot that felled Horton for the remainder of the Stanley Cup finals.

Of course, the Vancouver defenseman's season is also over; he was suspended four games for the late hit. But that did little to console the B's.

Even in the afterglow of Monday night's 8-1 rout at the Garden, it was tough to come to terms with the sobering reality that their second-leading postseason scorer — including two Game 7 winners — is no longer available.

"[The suspension] doesn't bring Nathan back," linemate Milan Lucic said. "He's been one of, if not our best, forwards throughout the playoffs. It's a big loss for us, but it's an opportunity for someone now to step up."

The Bruins can even the finals at two with a Game 4 victory tonight.

Rookie Tyler Seguin will return to the lineup, with Shawn Thornton remaining a policing presence. But the key man could be Michael Ryder, a leading candidate to skate in Horton's place with Lucic and David Krejci. Rich Peverley could also see time on the Lucic-Krejci line.

"I'm not sure what is going to happen," said Ryder, who had a goal and two assists Monday. "I played with Krejci before and with Lucic on and off at times. I feel comfortable there. If I get put in that position, I'll have to step it up and make sure I help those guys out as much as I can." ● JEFF GOLDBERG

Canucks behind teammate

The Canucks are saying all the right things about Nathan Horton.

Just don't expect them to agree with the NHL's four-game suspension for Aaron Rome.

"We've got to support Aaron," captain Henrik Sedin said. "He's been a big part of this team, a great player for us. It's tough to see what he goes through right now. At the same time you don't want to see a guy like Horton out like he is. That's not fun to see." ● METRO

▶ The argument

Papelbon suspended

Red Sox closer Jonathan Papelbon has been suspended three games and fined for bumping umpire Tony Randazzo during a ninth-inning argument Saturday.

Papelbon went after the ump after being thrown out of the game for arguing balls and strikes. Jason Varitek had previously been ejected.

Papelbon appealed the suspension; he was available for last night's game in the Bronx. ● METRO

Injured Tiger to skip US Open

Tiger Woods won't be snapping his lengthy winless streak at the U.S. Open next week.

Woods pulled out of the tournament yesterday, citing a left knee and Achilles injury he picked up during the Masters in April.

"I am extremely disappointed that I won't be playing in the U.S. Open, but it's time for me to listen to my doctors and focus on the future," Woods said.

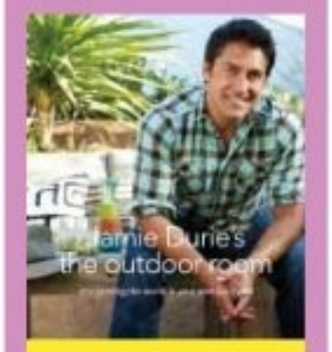
FROM "THE OUTDOOR ROOM"

Eating out in style

Those rusty beach chairs and moldy tiki torches have no place on your patio Jamie Durie on 'The Outdoor Room'



www.metro.us

FOR MORE PHOTOS AND TIPS FROM 'THE OUTDOOR ROOM,' VISIT US AT WWW.METRO.US /HOME

It's a familiar house tour: The carefully curated living room. The elegant dining room. The rustically modern kitchen. And then the back patio crammed with oversized plastic furniture, a rusty grill and a suspicious cooler that hasn't been opened since last August.

Jamie Durie's new book, "The Outdoor Room," argues for a more thoughtful approach to outside spaces. We caught up with the horticulturalist and HGTV host for some tips.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
monica.weymouth@metro.us

Have a plan
Before you start, know what you want. Even the tiniest outdoor space has fine-dining potential — if that's what you're looking for. "The best place to start is to ask yourself what you want to do in your outdoor room," says Durie. "Will you be entertaining or relaxing — or both? Do you need a formal dining setting, or will a casual modular lounge be more appropriate?"

Say no to plastic
Even if you're just looking for a place to eat burgers, flimsy plastic chairs are mood-killers. Durie recommends wood furniture for its sophisticated look and eco-friendliness: "It works in with any style [and] is soft to the touch; and the natural grain is hard to top. Timber does need to be oiled a couple of times a year to protect and extend the life of the product."

Don't forget the grill
That photo above? It's of Durie's own backyard. If you're also working with more than a Weber budget, follow his lead and splurge on the grill. "I love integrated barbecues that fit into the cooking surface of your outdoor kitchen with a complete linear design," he says.

If you're in the market for a more modest appliance, just ask yourself: What would Guy Fieri not do?

Put your garden to work
Blooms are always nice, but remember to include some functional greenery near your grill. "Think about installing a vertical garden wall close by, planted with assorted herbs," Durie says. "While you cook, you can just reach out and pluck fresh herbs straight out of the garden to toss on the sizzling food or use as ultra-fresh garnishes for serving."

Room at the top

If you can't afford a penthouse at 45 Province, there's luxury living to be had in the studios, as well

Whether you're at the top living in a spectacular penthouse or further down the real estate ladder calling a studio apartment home, when it comes to 45 Province's shared amenities, all residents are created equal. That means the condominium's heated rooftop pool, roof deck, clubroom, library, movie theater, micro-Exhale Spa and fitness center are available to all.

Sill, there's no denying that the six penthouses — one is under agreement — offer that little bit extra. Each is customizable to buyer's wishes and boast three-sided, floor-to-ceiling vistas over the city.

"Because there are only two homes per floor, the views are extraordinary," says Wayne Lopez, sales and marketing director of 45 Province. "It's breathtaking. It just draws you in."

Oh, and there's all the extra penthouse living space, of course: Three bedrooms (compared to none) and two garage parking spaces. The studio only has a rentable space option. It all comes at a price, though: Penthouse monthly condo fees are around $3,100; the studios are approximately $318.

Another thing residents share is location — a Beacon Hill address — and history. 45 Province sits on the spot that housed Province House, the colonial governor's mansion. "There's so much history all around here," adds Lopez.

The building has been on the market for well over a year. Lopez came on board last June to "re-strategize the marketing," for the developers, the Abbey Group. From January to June 2010, only two homes were sold. In the past year, 32 have been snapped up.

"Boston is a market unto itself," says Lopez, "and Bostonians come in all shape and sizes."

REAL ESTATE ON THE GO!

NETZERO SOLAR LIVING

By Attorney George Warshaw

Is it possible to live for free, where the cost of heating, air conditioning and the power to run every appliance is generated by the home?

"Net Zero" refers to an energy sufficient structure in which the annual energy cost to operate the house or condo is produced by the home's own mini power plant.

With a solar home, NetZero is reached by "banking" excess electricity generated by the solar panels with the electric company as a credit. The credit pays for electricity drawn from the power company in periods of intensive usage.

To reach NetZero efficiency, the amount of energy you bank annually approximately equals the amount you draw.

I toured a 13 unit NetZero condo project under construction in Concord, Massachusetts – the "Concord Riverwalk." Each condominium is built as a self-contained cottage style structure with its own solar power plant. Owners share gardens, walkways, garage parking and other common areas.

Each house generates energy through solar panels installed on the south side of the roof, and saves energy through "green" construction techniques that eliminate air infiltration and seepage, i.e. energy loss. Contact Steve Weikal (617-596-2777, steve@concordriverwalk.com) for more info.

Next week, the economics of solar.
